

Notes:

- The instructions shown in the document are explained in a general way, so they don't specify the existence of certain actors or objects.
- The instructions don't explain who delivers the product once the credit is approved, but someone in charge of handing the product to the customer is added as an actor.
- It doesn't say whether the bank is involved with automatic payments, but it's added as an actor since, logically, it's the one responsible for them.
- Taking into account the diagram made by the students and the diagram made by the teacher, ideas from both were used to complement the actors, the objects and their relationship between them in the previous diagram.
